Instant digital delivery trusted by millions paying safe & well level Contributors 2 posts 34 reviewed 12 helpful votes by buying a Lebara Mobile SIM 7 years a mobile Lebara might seem attractive, but they are a nightmare to deal with – especially if you are traveling from overseas to the UK. I bought a Lebara SIM because I used Lebara in Spain, and it was pretty easy. But in the UK, it chewed up all my credit in just a few days. Then, when I tried to top-up my credit, I ran into the ridiculous issue of Lebara only accepting UK credit cards. Which type of company wants to attract travellers only accepts UK credit cards????? This study defines belief. What was even more pain, is that when you try and recharge online they don't tell you that. You just keep on getting error messages without explanation. When I called (and sat on hold for 10 min), they finally explained that international credit cards are not accepted. Extraordinary stupid. (Even more stupid, when I used my international credit card just fine in Spain recharge my Hispanic Lebara Sim) The only solution they provide is to hunt-down a vendor on The Streets of Credit Lebara. This is weak, but it would be good if they simply advised on their websites they do not accept international credit cards. 248 replies in this subject Contributor Level 49,560 posts 82 reviews 193 vote 1. Re: By purchasing a Lebara mobile SIM 7 ago & I think will read you into it, I doubt it in its own agreement & but, in the uk, it=chewed=up=all=my=credit=in=just=a=few=days.=& y:-) Contributor level 17,306 posts 4 reviewed 15 useful votes 2. Re: Do not buy a Lebara mobile SIM 7 from so many UK phone networks only allow online top UK register cards. Probably an anti-fraud measure. UK and Spanish financial laws are different. Finding a store that sells Lebara top-up is hardly difficult though. Any store showing symbols of green top-up where you would top-up any other network, Payzone, Payzone, Post Office, Phone Phones4U, Carphone Warehouse, Asda, Morrisons, Tesco, Sainsburys. It's not like it's some weird small company where you can only head up to 3 locations in London and they're all in Hounslow. Contributor level 2 posts 34 reviewed 12 helpful votes 3. Re: Don't buy a Lebara mobile SIM 7 ago actually – it's pretty incredible. I've traveled all over the world and have never met this kind of small credit card approach. And it especially doesn't make sense when lebara in Spain doesn't have this condition – nor does it explain this restriction on its website. It's typical British poor customer service attitude. There is no need to make a sheets condemnation of an entire country on one company's account. Especially when, his Dutch All owns :) Contributor level 26 posts 123 reviewed 122 useful votes 5. Re: By buying a Lebara mobile SIM 6 years ago I would definitely agree – by buying a Lebara sim. We got them at the airport and seemed ok, really cheap calling in Australia with free messages to Lebara, as well as data for cards etc. However, once the data expires there is no way to opt out and renew again or get a different pass. If you run out of data after 20 days, you are stuck for 10 days have not been able to get a new pass, you can recharge credit but not the data or pass, and you are stuck being charged an outlining amount for data (we last 2 days with this option – 10 pounds down the drainage). After calling customer service and spending about half an hour on the phone saying you can only have one pass active, and even if you opt out, you can't get a new one before 30 days (there's no location in terms and conditions to do it say anything about that). Furious about the situation. Try mobile or anyone else. 1 post 6. Re: By purchasing a Lebara mobile SIM 6 years ago I bought Lebara sim card, added Data Plus 500 Pass for 15 GBP. Y & But, & Mobile data: Unlimited. After 5 days to cancel my Data Plus than without prior notice and change my sim card to pay-as-you-go tariff, 1 GBP for 0.2Mb, after all my Lebara balance has been removed within 10 minutes. I called them to find out what happened. They said they implemented the amendments: UNLIMITED data (subject to nothing abuse in terms of our offer and fair use regulations). So I downloaded 3 Gb of data and considered that it is not just. Be carefully of this challenging company called Lebara. Contributor Level 1 post 57 reviewed 12 helpful votes 7. Re: Don't buy a Lebara mobile SIM 6 years ago I have to say it is low mobile network price. But I had a few problems with the network connections. My friends told me a few times that they can't through when they call my mobile number free. I really don't want to miss any important calls. It's myself when I call others. Lebara's customer service is also poor. Just can't rely on Lebara's service No. 1 Post 8. Re: By purchasing a Lebara mobile SIM 6 years ago even happened to me - bought Lebara Dataplus 500 web pass and upper lift my pay balance at the same time. After 2 days my balance was zero and I had to call customer service. After like 40 minutes to activate the web pass, and put back almost every currency in my PayG account. Now a month later, they hide their Doneplus so well that there is no way to renew it. For the same amount of money you can only purchase a 3 GB pack only. come on. WTF Contributor Level 1 post 30 review 17 useful votes 9. Re: By buying a Lebara mobile SIM 6 years ago I totally agreed. Don't buy a Lebara SIM. Their customer service is simply displayed to deal with. They actually made it impossible for me to change my old mobile number onto them. Part through the procedure, the call was cut off. When I called back, I had to repeat all the PUK and PAC codes (understand) and answer how much credit I had. Since it was a new card I just had £10m but was told as I got a safety question wrong (how much credit) they would not face with me. I later discovered that the original call took 10pence off credit I didn't realize so gave the wrong answer. I recorded the SIM! 1 post 10. Re: By purchasing a Lebara mobile SIM 6 ago With regard to Sim

Lebara's card, I have been in the UK twice in the past 3 years, bought a Sim Lebara and never had a problem. Found the staff to be very helpful every time I had a question or a question, which was much more my mistake than them. I live in Australia and I use Lebara here too and they are terrifying. Messing some of the other companies doesn't mind like Lebara does. do you.
